To Rent or Not Rent, That Is the Question

by Liz Dane

If you are a new homeowner (Congratulations!) or a long-time resident and have been thinking about renting out your home, you likely have a lot of questions. Should we rent out our home? How much work is it? Is it financially worth it? These are all good questions that can't always be easily answered.

The first year we owned our home, we contracted with a rental management company. We soon realized we wanted to do it on our own and it has since worked out well. However, it is not for everyone. If you don't live within 2-3 hours from Coolfont, it may not be the best option for you.

Online rental platforms have made renting your home easier than in the past. Renters are looking for recommendations from others - along with easy payment methods. Online platforms offer all of that and may offer additional services. Online companies like Airbnb, Vacation Rental by Owner and Evolv can help you manage your rental, but take a percentage and charge the guest a booking fee.

The best part of self management is the contact with your guests. We have made great friends and repeat guests over the years. The key is to find a great housekeeper and maintenance person!

What costs are involved in renting out your home? (not a complete list)

- Mortgage, Insurance
- Taxes - Morgan County Occupancy Tax, Real Estate Taxes, and WV State Income Taxes
- Morgan County Sanitary Inspection
- Housekeeping services and trash removal
- Utilities: Water/Sewer, Electric, Phone, Internet, Cable/Satellite TV
- Wood for fireplace, other supplies
- Website (optional)

Referral and reviews

CMA member, Jefferson Stovall, has three rental properties (not all Coolfont). He cannot emphasize enough the need for good communication with your renters via the different online platforms. You live and die by the reviews: One bad review can jeopardize future rentals.

Exterior Changes? Ask the DACC

by Dennis Daisey, DACC Chair

If you own a home in Coolfont, you should already be familiar with the Development and Architectural Control Committee - commonly known as the DACC (rhymes with pack). The DACC is a small committee of volunteers tasked with enforcing the rules and regulations for homes in Coolfont. Their scope covers exterior modifications of existing homes and new construction. The DACC does not cover any interior modifications.

For example:

If you want to paint your home a different color, add a deck, enlarge your driveway, remove a tree or install new roof shingles in a different color - you'll need to submit an application to the DACC for approval. If you're building a new home, you'll want to be in touch with DACC from the start, to be sure there are no surprises during your construction process. They'll review your plans and work with you to address any issues, such as proper drainage on the property.

Why do we have a DACC?

The DACC works to protect the natural setting of our community by ensuring that homes meet the requirements set forth by the CMA's "Regulations and Guidelines for Building at Coolfont" (available at CMA website). This helps ensure quality and consistency of construction and design in our community - which helps protect our property values.

How do I submit an application?

Owners should request approval using the form available on the CMA website and submitting it to the Site Manager, Holly Malcomb. She will assist owners with the process and help them determine what will be required for approval. Your application is then forwarded to the DACC for review and approval. Applications are processed electronically, using email and attachments (photos, PDFs).

How long will approval take?

Applications should be submitted well in advance of performing any work. The DACC is comprised of volunteers so please allow time for the approval process and account for this when planning work or scheduling contractors. For applications that may require site visits or approvals in person, please allow extra time, as DACC volunteers do not live locally. The Committee appreciates your patience and understanding.

What if my application is denied?

If the DACC has concerns about your application, they will work with you to find an agreeable solution for your request. If no agreement can be reached, the owner may appeal the DACC denial to the CMA Board. The appeal must be in writing to the Board Secretary, requesting the Board review the denied application at the next scheduled Board meeting. It is recommended that the owner attend that meeting to address questions.

Does everything need an application?

Applications do not need to be submitted for routine maintenance or when repairing an exterior feature with a matching replacement. As examples: repainting your home the same color does not need approval; replacing your rotted deck stairs does not need approval - unless you then paint/stain them a different color. Then you would need approval for the new color.

And one more thing...

Owners should understand that precedent doesn't mean approval. There are many homes in the community that aren't in compliance because they were built or altered at a time when the DACC wasn't active. The DACC is committed to maintaining the integrity of the community and the volunteers are actively working toward that goal.

Assessments Due in January

Just a reminder that annual assessments will be due in January. Invoices will be mailed out to your address on record. Please be sure to pay assessments by January 31 to avoid finance charges on the outstanding balance. Please note the new assessment amounts for 2020:

Assessment for Houses		$1525
Assessment for Lots		$875
Pool Fee, Rental Property	(Due in May)	$71

Jefferson recommends that if for any reason you get a bad review, don't respond defensively. Turn the response and the experience with a positive outcome. Don't worry there will always be people who find the smallest thing wrong and will point it out publicly.

Using a rental management company

There are several management companies in Berkeley Springs. There are also people who can manage your rentals that do it as a side job. Here are things to keep in mind when using a management company.

- Management companies get a percentage of your rental. It can range from 10-30%.
- Some management companies charge you for everything that they do in your house: cleaning materials, trash bags, sweeping the porch, blowing the leaves off the driveway. If something breaks, they will fix it and charge you for the repair - often at a marked up price.
- You lose a bit of the control and autonomy over your house. For some people, that may not be an issue. Using a rental company does not allow you to know who rented your home.

Benefits of using a rental management company

- Most have a website with a rental platform.
- Most will market all the houses on their site which results in increased rentals.
- Your home will be "looked after." Good managers make sure that the house is in its best shape.
- Communication with you about what needs to be fixed or replaced.
- They will take care of the financial transactions.
- If there is a problem in the middle of the night, they are there to help.

What are potential renters looking for in a cabin?

Renters are looking for a variety of things, but we found the following:

- As much as they want to be in a "cabin," they still want all the creature comforts: WiFi, big screen TV and areas that they can "hang out."
- A well stocked kitchen with every type of gadget to making cooking easier.
- People like to bring their pets (They are always willing to pay pet fees).

Additional thoughts on renting your home at Coolfont

- Be a good neighbor! That means emphasize to your renters that you follow all the CMA rules and regulations and you expect your renters to do the same. Post friendly signs in the home.
- Create your own "dos and don'ts" for your renters: no parties, limit the number of people that can rent your home, no smoking.
- Respect the environment. Limit water usage - especially on high occupancy weekends.
- Flexibility. Renters will always ask to come early or stay late. If you can, accommodate their requests.

Good luck on making the most of your home!

New Board Members

The following members were elected to the CMA Board of Directors at the Annual Meeting in September. Their 2-year term starts in January 2020.

Jason Geno

Sharon Geno (re-elected)

Dawne Holz

Artists in Residence

If you missed the opportunity to visit their studios during the Artist Studio Tour in October, here's the scoop on our Coolfont artists.

Rosemary Bigelow

Rosemary started My Grandmother's Lace 30 years ago when she began making one-of-a-kind items featuring beautiful old textiles. Her business expanded over the years into home furnishings and accessories, including new fabrics, but has kept the custom design and classic feel of its antique textile roots. She specializes in unique pillows, bedding, window treatments, table linens and purses. After she completes the design, pieces are made to order by local seamstresses.

Craig Deane

Craig uses wood to create useful items that are both artistic and useful in everyday life. His pieces are made of local woods and when possible, reclaimed wood from old barns or cast offs from local furniture manufacturing. Making useful items from recycled wood is a responsible and sustainable practice.

Richard Kaufman

Richard's paintings combine the principles of East Asian brush painting and Western art. He uses ink and watercolors on rice papers to depict scenes from nature. His goal is to capture the energy and life force of his subjects.

Saving Your Septic

from Cacapon River Stewardship Guide
[edited for space and to include CMA information]

Mainly used in rural areas, a septic system holds and purifies every drop of water you use in your home. Through an intricate balance among biology, ecology and gravity, the system's two main components - the septic tank on your property and the CMA effluent treatment system - almost magically process enormous amounts of wastewater each year.

Faulty septic systems are one of the biggest contributors of polluted water into our groundwater and rivers. There are several simple things you can do to keep this process running smoothly and to protect the efficiency and efficacy of CMA's treatment facility.

Find your septic tank:

It's not surprising that many owners don't know where their septic system is exactly. This information is not always passed down from the previous owner when you purchase a home. Your local county health department may be able to provide information. Or contact local septic service companies to see if any have serviced your address in the past.

Pump your tank:

Having your septic tank pumped on the recommended schedule of every 3 to 5 years, depending on your use, is one of the easiest ways to keep your system healthy and prevent problems in the long run.

Conserve water:

Be conscious of how many water-heavy appliances are running. Don't water multi-task - don't wash your laundry, run the dishwasher and take a shower at the same time. Too much water into the system drowns the "good" bacteria that process your waste.

Watch what goes down the drain:

What kills the germs on your kitchen counters and in your toilets also kills the "good" bacteria in your septic tank. So chose wisely. Chlorine bleach does the most damage. Other culprits are grease and oil; avoid pouring either down your kitchen sink.

Hazard Assessments Due

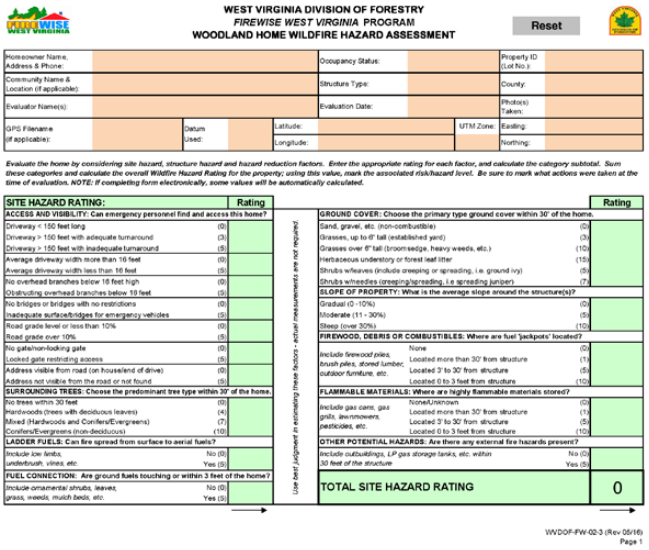

by Cathy Levey

Firewise communities like ours are required to update our Action Plan every three years in order to maintain our Firewise designation. Our updated Action Plan is due in 2021 and is based on the trends that we discover when completing our wildfire hazard assessments.

The Hazard Assessment and subsequent Action Plan offer us real insight into those areas where we are vulnerable and where we might focus as a community to reduce the risk of wildfire damage to our homes and community.

Hazard Assessments need to be completed on all 118 homes in Coolfont. In answering a few questions about the home and its surroundings, we can determine each homes' wildfire risk. Firewise provides a worksheet for the assessment that is available as a fillable form from the CMA website (see Owners section under Firewise).

Homeowners are asked to complete the Hazard Assessment form and send it to Cathy Levey. You can save the fillable PDF and send it as an email attachment. Alternately, you can provide permission for a volunteer to complete the Hazard Assessment on your behalf. To do so, please send an email to Cathy Levey granting permission for a volunteer to walk around the exterior of your property.

Rules and Regulations: Tips for Rental Properties

Here are some of the CMA Rules and Regulations that should be passed along to renters. Owners may want to include this information in their rental contract and/or post it on the property.

Clothes Drying: Outdoor clothes drying should be done only in screened areas, and not be visible from neighboring property or CMA roadways.

Exterior Fires: Open fires in or on the ground are not permitted. Stand-alone exterior gas, wood and charcoal grills and fire receptacles are permitted if factory manufactured and maintained in good condition. Receptacles in disrepair must be replaced. Permanently installed stone or brick barbecues with chimneys and spark arrestors are permitted only with prior CMA approval and must be located safely away from trees and shrubs.

Hunting Prohibited: All forms of hunting are prohibited on CMA property.

Noise Restrictions: Loud noise, barking dogs, the playing of music, radios, amplifiers, musical instruments, the noisy operation of vehicles, and machinery by owners, tenants and their guests at volumes sufficient to disturb a neighboring residence is not permitted. Strict observation of this rule is requested from 11:00 pm to 7:30 am.

Pets and Animals: Dogs and cats must be properly cared for and kept indoors at night. Barking dogs are prohibited. When walked outside the residence, dogs must be on leash at all times and may not roam or be chained outdoors. Other domestic animals are not permitted on the Mountainside.

Residential Parking: Each residence may provide one parking space for each bedroom, or room readily used as a bed room; with a minimum of two and maximum of six parking spaces including parking spaces in carports or garages. Overnight parking of more than the permitted number of vehicles is not permitted. No vehicle larger that a step van may be parked on a lot.

Roadway Parking Limitations: Residents are asked not to park on the CMA roadways or common ground except in specified parking areas. In emergency (snow) conditions roadside parking may be necessary but residents are asked to park so as not to block access by emergency and/or snow removal vehicles.

Speed Limit on the Mountainside: 15 miles per hour.

Trailers, Boats and Outside Storage: Trailers, RVs, ATVs, truck campers, trailers and trailered boats are not permitted to be parked on residential lots, driveways or CMA common ground. Materials, tools, equipment etc may not be stored on lots, driveways or on common ground. Vehicles displaying advertising may only be parked in a garage or screened carport.

Sourmi Broxson

We are saddened to learn that Sourmi Broxson passed away in her sleep on August 25. She and her husband, Elmer, purchased their property at Lot H-8 on Woodpecker Drive from Sam Ashelman in April 1975. They built their Coolfont home the following year.

Sourmi was a registered nurse at Washington Hospital Center for 30 years and a warm and friendly neighbor in the Coolfont community. She and Elmer were active volunteers and helped to shape the community in its early years. She will be missed.

George Lardner

We have lost a wonderful neighbor, George Lardner, who bought L-4 "Hearthstone" over 30 years ago. Born in Brooklyn on August 10, 1934, George died on September 21 in a hospice center in Aldie, VA. George spent over 40 years as a reporter at the Washington Post, covering some of the biggest – and smallest, but most powerful – stories he could find. He was awarded a Pulitzer Prize in 1993 for his story covering the murder of his youngest daughter, Kristen.

George said his joy – and that of his late wife, Rosemary – was coming to Coolfont to listen to the sound of the big trees around their house on Wintergreen. He was seen at most of our annual meetings, offering clear and constructive ideas and asking pointed, important questions (as great reporters do). Please let us remember the life of George Lardner, and his presence in our village.

Wayne Miller

In July 2002, Wayne W. Miller and his friend, Vickie Zanca, purchased Lot S-6 in Coolfont. Wayne was born in York, PA on May 11, 1943 and passed away at Greenspring Village in Springfield, VA on July 25. Wayne was a practicing attorney for the federal government for 30 years, serving at the Interstate Regulatory Commission and Federal Regulatory Commission.
